- ✓ 1. The handbook says, "Your backpack should be a bag of bags." What does that mean? (Hint: Use words like "stuff sacks" or "Ziploc bags".)

That means you should use Ziploc bags to keep things in or stuff sacks because they are small and can fit plenty of things.

- ✓ 2. Some items are needed often, and some you may need to get in a hurry, so these should be packed near the top or in outside pockets where they can be reached easily. Pick four items in this category.

Water
Sun Screen
Snacks/Trail food
First Aid kit

- ✓ 3. Some of the listed items will turn into a real problem if they get wet from rain or if you fall into a stream. Pick two items in this category.

Sleeping bag
Snacks/Food or Clothing

- ✓ 4. When we schedule a backpacking trip and the troop meets up at the parking lot prior to departure, the SPL will ask everyone, "Is there empty space in your backpack?" Why does he want to know? (Hint: Use words like "troop gear" or "food" or "stove" or "pots and pans".)

He wants to know if there is space for troop gear, food, stove, pots, and pans.

- ✓ 5. It's unlikely that you will have enough room inside your backpack for your sleeping bag or sleeping pad. What can you do instead? (Hint: Use words like "Pack's top flap" or "Frame".)

You can put your sleeping bag and pad in the pack's top flap or the external or internal frame.

- ___ Heaviest items go high in the pack

- ✓ ___ Heaviest items go low in the pack

7. Use the drawing on the next page to answer this question. If you have an external frame backpack, where should the heaviest items go? (choose one)

- ✓ ___ Heaviest items go high in the pack
- ___ Heaviest items go in the middle of the pack
- ___ Heaviest items go low in the pack
